

Contracts

Master in L&M 2E 2022/2023

Lecturer	Miguel Assis Raimundo
E-mail	miguel.a.raimundo@gmail.com
Class Schedule	14:00-18:00

Introduction

Contracts are, obviously, a fundamental part of any legal system and an essential tool for economic activity in general. Due to the nature of the Master's in which the course is taught, the course covers several aspects of private and public law contracts, including several aspects of contract law which assume an international dimension (namely, the application of the Convention on International Sale of Goods – CISG) and European law.

Goals

The main objective of the course “Contracts” is to introduce core concepts and develop fundamental legal skills regarding the regime of contracts, mostly from an international and European perspective.

The lessons will be lectured aiming to achieve in-depth treatment of cutting-edge issues in a pragmatic perspective, combining both “legal” and “economic” reasoning and stimulating research, analysis, critique, and argumentation capabilities, making the discipline suitable to a broad range of attendants, such as Law students, managers, economists, compliance officers, and anyone interested in the field. In the final part of the course, an advanced practical workshop on contracts will also take place.
