Introduction

Commercial companies are the leading actors of economic life. The aim of this course is to deepen knowledge in Corporate Law, focusing on the organization of commercial companies, namely the company's liability, as well as its directors' liability.

Goals

This course deals with the corporate law major issues and themes. It is divided into two large blocks: the first deals with basic concepts regarding corporations and liability; and the second is dedicated to the foundations of corporate law. Starting with the basic structure of a commercial company, several issues, as the corporate bodies, the corporate financing, the status of the shareholders, delicate issues of corporate liability will be dealt, namely undercapitalization, mingling of assets and liability of corporate groups.

Methods

Classes will be lectured aiming to achieve in-depth treatment of cutting-edge issues in a pragmatic perspective, combining both "legal" and "economic" reasoning and stimulating research, analysis, critique, and argumentation capabilities, making the discipline suitable to a broad range of attendants. To this extent, despite centered on the Portuguese legal framework, the themes will be dealt in a comparative manner, bearing in mind, namely US and German Law.

This course uses the flipped classroom design. Hence, students will be required to prepare before class, namely through reading of selected materials. Since the course has a practical nature – with sound theoretical background - analysis of case law will play a pivotal role. US Case law will be a primary source, to assess its reasoning in the light of Portuguese law.
